Course content

Andrew Wilson and Mark Gregory have been involved with show gardens for many years. Their unique insight will be put to good use here in helping you to understand the process of show garden making.

Together they will identify and explain design considerations, the search for a sponsor and cost implications, the production of the client brief, locating and involving the right contractor, understanding the assessment and judging process and the allocation medals

Their knowledge of all major RHS shows will also help you to place your design in the right category and at the best event for you and your sponsor. So many people approach the process with great naivety, assuming that “everything will be alright on the night”.

This one day lecture is appropriate to sponsors, designers and contractors and will include lunch to enable designers to discuss and share ideas in an informal but constructive environment.

About the tutors

The day will be led by Andrew Wilson, in coming Chair of the Chelsea Gardens Panel, Chief Assessor and judge for the RHS and Mark Gregory, assessor and judge with over 20 years of show garden contracting and countless medal winning gardens to his name.
