

024 – Evening Standard Homes & Property Readers Evening

Urban garden design solutions

In a special evening for Evening Standard readers two of the countries leading garden designers will share with you the secrets of creating a great city garden including design solutions to bring your garden into the new decade, planting ideas for difficult sites such as shady gardens and the latest ideas and trends for town gardens.

They'll be plenty of time for questions and solutions for your own garden challenges. Our designers for the evening are:

Andrew Fisher Tomlin

Andrew is the Founding Director of Fisher Tomlin creating award-winning gardens across Europe and the Caribbean. His latest projects include roof gardens in London and chic city spaces in Paris and Stockholm and he'll be creating the Royal Horticultural Society's own Bio-diversity exhibit at this year's Chelsea Flower Show.

Andrew Wilson

Andrew is one of the UK's most respected teachers and lecturers in garden design with a teaching pedigree stretching back over 20 years. He is also an award winning garden designer and a writer both as a successful author and journalist and as Chief Assessor for show gardens for the RHS can give us the inside track of what Chelsea will bring this year.

We'll hear their top ideas for creating that haven away from the noise and bustle but keeping you in the heart of the city. Come along to Regent's Park to get some great ideas that you can start creating straightaway.
