035C - The Magic of Planting

14th June 2011

Three designers talk about their approach to planting design and how they develop their design solutions.

Chelsea gold medallists Philip Nixon and James Wong will be joined by RHS judge and Director of Garden Design Studies at LCGD, Andrew Wilson to talk about their process. Each will share their approach in terms of design thinking, association and plant selection in delivering their design solutions whether for show or for real.

Come and join us for an evening of debate and revelation.

Our Tutors

Philip Nixon

Philip runs a landscape and garden design practice based in London and works on projects in the UK and overseas. He has won 3 gold medals and 1 silver gilt for show gardens at the Chelsea Flower Show. The ethos of his practice is based on the idea that design is the thread that ties together landscape, ecology, architecture and art.

James Wong

James Wong is an ethnobotanist, television presenter & best-selling author based in London. Trained to Masters level at the University of Kent and the Royal Botanic Gardens, Kew, his work has taken him to Ecuador, South China and Indonesia. In 2008 James co-founded his own garden design studio, Amphibian Designs which has since won 3 consecutive RHS medals, including a coveted Gold Medal at the Chelsea Flower Show 2010.
